In order to get a true infinite focus I have to use either autofocus or adjust the manual focus just below the "infinite" setting to the point that objects far away are truly in focus. A simple software update for Nokia Camera should fix this by properly resetting the focus position when infinite manual focus is selected. I got my Lumia 1020 in late December with the Black update and the Nokia Camera software updated to allow .DNG support. I'll post some comparison photos later.
